Support Cooperation

There shouldn't be a P on support Cooperation.

The following support counters are optional.

Support POW

This support has to be played immediately once it is drawn by the German player. The player rolls a die for each German unit that is "Out of Supply" and situated at more than five hexes away from a friendly, supplied unit. On a result of 4 to 6, the unit takes a step loss. Also, any German unit at Festung status and adjacent to an enemy unit takes a step loss on a result of 6.

Support Engineers

The Allied player can use this support counter in two ways:

- Crossing a River – At any moment during the player's turn, the Allies can place this support counter on to a friendly combat unit that is adjacent to a river. Thus, this support acts in the same manner as an HQ in pontoon mode in that it cancels out the river for the purposes of supply and movement on all the hexsides adjacent to this support.
- Fortifications Assault – The support counter is placed during the Allied combat phase on a unit attacking a Festung or a hex of the Siegfried Line. The Allied player receives a bonus of +2 on die rolls for combat only. This support can not be used in the exploitation phase.
